ADA: Awareness, Compliance and Responsibility

The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), passed in 1990, prohibits all discrimination against individuals with disabilities in all areas including employment, state and local government, transportation and all places that are open to the general public. It sometimes seems the only people who are aware of the ADA are individuals who are disabled and the parents of individuals who are disabled. One reason for this is there is no federal agency or other government entity who oversees compliance, training, or awareness of responsibilities for the ADA.

The ADA requires that title II entities (State and local governments) and title III entities (businesses and nonprofit organizations that serve the public) communicate effectively with people who have communication disabilities.

Individuals who are deaf or hard of hearing (dhh) or who communicate differently are covered by the ADA under communication disabilities. Covered entities (title II and title III) are required to provide “auxiliary aids and services” when needed to communicate effectively with individuals who have communication disabilities.

“Auxiliary aids and services” is a general term used in reference to communication options. Effective communication can mean any modality or technology that best suits an individual’s communication need. One auxiliary aid or service does not necessarily meet the needs of all individuals. Entities are required to work with individuals to determine an appropriate communication fit. Strong advocacy skills are necessary for parents of a child and individuals who are dhh to request and receive access to effective communication in every activity, event, or outing where communication is necessary.

The United States Department of Justice website states that the ADA is only enforced through complaints, lawsuits, consent decrees, settlement agreements, and mediation. For some entities the request for communication access happens so infrequently that they do not have a protocol in place to meet the request. When staff are not properly trained there might be a delay resulting in a missed program or confusion on who will pay for the service, or an inadequate service is offered as a substitute. The ADA is clear. Entities are always responsible to pay for auxiliary aids and services. If a covered entity flatly denies a communication request and all informal efforts for a resolution have failed, it is then left to parents of a child and individuals who are dhh to figure out what steps to take to enforce their civil rights. Information on how to file a formal complaint with the U.S. Department of Justice can be found at www.ada.gov/filing_complaint.htm

The goal is to ensure that communication with people with these disabilities is equally effective as communication with people without disabilities.

Deaf Quilters of MN

Representatives from Deaf Quilters of Minnesota donated beautifully handmade quilts to help replenish MNH&V Welcome Blanket supply. Club members share a love for sewing, but come from a variety of backgrounds and communities across Minnesota and even Wisconsin. The group started meeting in homes, but now meets monthly at Thompson Hall.

Many years ago the group held all-day quilting marathons to make baby quilts to donate to out of state organizations caring for families who were deaf or hard of hearing (dhh). The group likes the idea of their quilts being distributed in Minnesota to families with a newly identified child who is dhh.

Volunteer Opportunity at MNH&V Metro Family Picnic

Minnesota Hands & Voices (MNH&V) is looking for volunteers for this year’s Annual Metro Family Picnic on Thursday, August 3, from 5:00 - 8:30 pm. We are looking for volunteers to help in several areas during the picnic, such as welcoming families through registration and helping children with activities and crafts. American Sign Language Interpreters and Cued English Transliterators will be available at the picnic to provide access, but we welcome any parent or student volunteers who have communication skills, too. Volunteers are also needed to arrive early to help set-up and/or stay late to help clean-up. Please let us know what your “super powers” are and what you might want to do to make this event more special for MNH&V families.

Over the years we have been fortunate to have an active MNH&V community of volunteers who have made the Annual Metro Family Picnic a success. Please consider joining us this year. Volunteer registration is easy, but takes time to process properly so as soon as you can commit please contact Laura Libby, Parent Education Guide, email at LauraL@lifetrack-mn.org or call at 651-265-2357.

Brand New, State-of-the-Art, Barrier-Free Playground at Gideon Pond Elementary, Burnsville

On June 8, the last day of school, students and staff at Gideon Pond Elementary in Burnsville, host to ISD 917 Deaf/Hard of Hearing Program for 35 years, celebrated with Vikings mascot, Victor, and Vikings cheerleaders. The celebration was to witness U.S. Bank executives present a check for $50,000 to Gideon Pond Principal, Chris Bellmont. This fulfilled their fundraising goal, started two years ago, to build a state-of-the-art, barrier-free playground at Gideon Pond.

Lisa and Eddie Sardinha, parents of Victoria, a learner in the ISD 917 Deaf/Hard of Hearing Program, have been on the Gideon Pond Playground Committee from the start. They were part of the program, in which Lisa thanked all for helping to see through the creation of a playground which will be made accessible and barrier-free for her daughter.

“Gideon Pond Elementary is on the leading edge of a movement to make playgrounds more inclusive and right for EVERY child,” said Kitri Kyllo, Assistant Director of ISD 917 Deaf/Hard of Hearing Program and a member of the Gideon Pond Playground Committee. “While the playground will benefit the whole community, there is no question it will allow ISD 917 learners with physical challenges a real playground experience where they get to participate side-by-side in play activities with their peers. This is profound!”

Meet Lifetrack’s DHH Role Model — Jessica Stern

Jessica Stern is a role model for Lifetrack DHH Role Model Program. Jessica grew up in a small town in southern Minnesota. Jessica became profoundly hard of hearing as a baby during a harrowing medical experience, which almost cost her her life. After several office and emergency room visits local doctors and emergency room staff could not diagnose Jessica’s illness. But with her mother’s persistence and the help of one compassionate doctor, Dr. Parnell, they were finally sent directly to the hospital in Rochester. Jessica was one of the first infants to be diagnosed with Meningitis during the Meningitis outbreak in the 1980’s. It wasn’t until after her first birthday that her babysitter discovered Jessica could not hear due to that illness.

Growing up Jessica’s parents, two sisters and various foster siblings worked tirelessly on language skills with her. Her mother would hold up an apple and say, “Jessi, say ‘apple’ (insert babble), good job!” This went on for hours upon hours; her baby sister learned to speak much earlier than normal because of all the practice. Working on language skills was not easy and it took much patience for her and her family, but she eventually started talking. Jessica had success with hearing aids growing up and her family took sign language classes to give her another tool to use then and in the future.

In regard to being a role model, Jessica tells a story about an encounter she had with a woman. Apparently the woman had meet Jessica years earlier at an event in Mankato.

“Her son was only 6 weeks old and she had found out that he was deaf. She shared some moving words about meeting Jessica which had impacted the way she raised him because she thought I had turned out pretty great,” said Jessica, adding, “My mom was actually there when this woman shared this information and she said, ‘That’s all I wanted to see when she was a baby, someone who turned out okay at the end of all this.’” This exchange with her mother and the woman was the driving factor for Jessica’s desire to be a role model.

Jessica’s advice for parents would be to toss any expectations or bars that someone else has laid down for your child who is dhh. “No one has the right to limit someone else has laid down for your child who is dhh. “No one has the right to limit what you and your family can become and no one can see the future,” she said. “Although it is hard to see the end result now, the future you is very wise, happy, and telling you to just take on each day with a smile.”

Jessica was active in college life by joining a sorority and was a member of several executive boards for campus. She used accommodations for classes as needed, mostly interpreters or note takers. She graduated from the mortuary program within the medical school at the University of Minnesota, and is now a licensed funeral director.

Jessica lives with her husband and they call the Twin Cities area their home.

Lifetrack’s: Deaf Mentor Family Program and DHH Role Model Program

Lifetrack’s Deaf & Hard of Hearing Outreach Services includes our MNH&V, along with offering two other programs specific to families with a child who is dhh: Deaf Mentor Family Program (DMFP) and DHH Role Model Program (DHRMMP). These programs offer many benefits to families who have a child who is dhh and are recognized as playing a critical role in the Minnesota Early Hearing Detection and Intervention System.

The DMFP is focused on facilitating early language through American Sign Language (ASL) instruction and sharing valuable insight about the social emotional development of children who are dhh. The program brings together the love of family, ASL, and the wealth of knowledge from a mentor who is dhh to provide a rich language environment for the child.

For more information about finding a Deaf Mentor for your family and the DMFP go to http://www.lifetrack-mn.org/deaf-mentor-family-program

The DHRMMP understands children who are dhh benefit from a positive relationship with a trusted adult who is also dhh. Role Models who have experienced the challenges of being dhh firsthand can help children who are dhh practice important self-advocacy skills and help develop their sense of identity. Families sense optimism and hope by seeing a connection between their child who is dhh to a successful Role Model. The Role Model will serve as a guide to the diversity of language and useful knowledge of technology options.

Back-to-School Checklist Starter for Parents with Children who are DHH

Parents with a child who is deaf or hard of hearing (DHH) have additional considerations before their child heads back to school in the fall. The more parents can get done this summer to prepare their child for the school year the better they can focus on learning.

Health and Wellness
Schedule annual appointments far in advance during summer break or for after-school to minimize disruptions in your child’s learning.

- Well-care Visit
  A well-care visit establishes a baseline of your child’s general health with a doctor you can trust. Many children who are DHH have ongoing health issues that can be noted as part of the child’s baseline health. Should your child become ill, the well-care notes along with a doctor who is familiar with your child can streamline a diagnosis for any new concerns.

- Update Immunizations
  Remember to ask for a copy of your child’s immunization records. This saves time filling out health forms for fieldtrips, activities, emergency health cards, etc.

- Medication Check
  If your child is on medications have a doctor double-check the dose for their age, weight, effectiveness, etc. Extra time for your child to adjust to changes in medications would be helpful before school starts. Make sure your child’s current prescription is filled and ready before school starts.

- Physical Paperwork
  Sports, camps, summer school, etc. often require health forms signed by a doctor. Bringing the forms to their appointment will save time. Doctors can sign forms any time, but it can take extra time to process.

- Visit the Dentist and/or Orthodontist
  Schedule appointments sooner than later, because the best times fill up fast.

- Vision Check
  Children who are DHH need to have optimal vision. An annual eye exam is recommended whether your child wears corrective eyewear or not. If your child has glasses, in addition to checking the lens prescription, check for stretches that can obscure their vision. Make sure their frames are the right size with no pressure points and adjusted to fit properly.

- Audiologist Visit
  Before school starts have your audiologist check the working order your child’s equipment, make sure the program is set for optimal sound and amplification. If possible create a separate program for any auxiliary equipment used at school. Your audiologist can answer any questions and make sure you and your child understand how to change programs, batteries and general care of the equipment. Remember to have for your child’s old CI processors and hearing aids programmed as up-to-date as possible. Old equipment is a viable back-up plan should something happen to their newer equipment.

  TIP: Take notes for your school audiologist or bring their contact information to give to your general audiologist. You’ll need to sign a HIPAA form, but then the two can work together on optimizing sound in different learning environments.

- Review Insurance and Warranties
  Depending on your child’s age, maturity, and many other variables it can be unsettling to send them to school with expensive equipment. Reduce anxiety by having a plan should something happen to their equipment. Most homeowner insurance does not cover this equipment. Talk to your audiologist, check product warranties and contact your healthcare customer service to figure out the most economical insurance coverage available.

  TIP: With school, keep extra school supplies. Be ready to use for back-up if needed.

At School
- Check for a VISUAL alert system and review safety plans with your child.
- Check tech devices for captioning capabilities; computers, televisions, etc.
- See the school nurse if your child has severe allergies or takes medications during the school day.
- Visit the school audiologist to touch base about your child’s equipment and the auxiliary equipment used at school.
- Send extra CI or hearing aid batteries to use for back-up if needed.
- Check your child’s classroom for ways to best accommodate their access to language in each environment.
- Together with your IEP team review your child’s accommodation needs with school administrators and, if appropriate, with fellow students.
- If your child’s accommodations includes interpreters, transmitters or a captionists make sure there is a back-up plan for unexpected absences.

For parents of a child who is DHH there is no one back-to-school checklist that covers personal choices and their child’s unique situation. Develop your own checklist you can add to over time. You’ll have peace of mind and more time for summer fun!
